SOW CENTS AND REAP DOLLARS

Treat your seed grain and treat it with the proper materials, advises W. Lobay, Supervisor of Crop Protection, Alberta Dept. of Agriculture. Year after year a number of carloads of Alberta wheat are graded smutty. This means not only a loss in price per bushel, but since smut replaces good kernels it also means a decrease in yield. These losses can be avoided.

Treatment with a mercurial compound is recommended. This will not only protect the grain from bunt or smut but from seedling blight, root rot and other soil organisms that attack the grain kernels. Since mercurials are poisonous and can be dangerous if inhaled, a mask should be worn during grain treatment. There are non-mercurials on the market but they are recommended only for prevention of bunt or stinking smut of wheat.

Seed drill surveys have shown that many farmers are still using formaldehyde for seed treatment. Formaldehyde is not recommended, especially for wheat, because it reduces as well as delays germination. Use a mercurial compound, advises Mr. Lobay. If it is inconvenient to treat your grain at home, take it to one of the large municipal seed cleaning plants where it can be both cleaned and treated.

An Appeal to All!

The Canadian National European Flood Relief Committee under the chairmanship of His Excellency the Governor General has launched an unlimited appeal for funds to help relieve the distress of flood sufferers.

There will be no national canvassing organization. Individuals, organizations and business firms are urged to make their donations through Branches of all chartered banks which will issue receipts valid for income tax purposes. All Post Offices will accept direct contributions by Postal Order, and similar arrangements have been made for Express Money Orders.

This is not a Red Cross appeal, but the Canadian Red Cross will be the administrative arm of the Committee for the distribution of assistance through its International Red Cross channels.

At present the appeal is for funds only. All requests for assistance from the fund will be checked by Red Cross Societies, Foreign Government Agencies and Canadian Embassies overseas.

The need is great. Your generous help is urgently requested.

Shirley Holmes, Wainwright, Alta. Mrs. Wise Prepares Beans In A Hurry

Mrs. Wise planned to have baked beans for supper, but she forgot to put them to soak the night before. So she decided to try a new stunt. Someone had told her about a quick method of soaking—add dry beans to boiling water, boil two minutes, then allow to soak in the hot water for an hour. Mrs. Wise tried it, using the water in which the beans were soaked for cooking. She found that her beans were just as good if not better than usual. The leaflet "Use Your Peas and Beans" will give you many ideas for variety in the use of dried peas and beans.

This gives a plan of the province showing the Horticultural Zones and a list of recommended fruits and vegetables for each zone. With this guide you will no longer have to guess what variety of vegetables, flowers and fruits suit your particular soil the most. Write this office for a free copy.

Standards for Judging

This is a booklet for YOUR use, especially if you plan on entering into fairs, exhibitions, and other types of competitive displays. It includes standards for foods, clothing and handicrafts. Know what the judges look for. This booklet can be obtained free of charge by writing me in care of this office.

Broiling

In the majority of electric ranges the broiler unit is the top unit of the oven. Broiling is cooking with radiant heat; the electric unit is, therefore, especially adapted to this type of cookery. The broiling unit is usually turned on "high" a few minutes before the food is placed in the oven to allow the heating coils to reach the maximum temperature. In high-speed broilers preheating is unnecessary. The power of the broiler is sufficiently high for the food to be placed under the broiler pan is usually set about three to four inches below the coils. During the broiling process the door is left ajar.

Although the above suggestions for successful and economical operation apply to all electric ranges, each range has its own individual characteristics, and it is advisable for the homemaker inexperienced in electric-range cookery to follow the directions given for her particular range.

Wonder Fudge

This easy-to-make fudge requires no cooking and is made this way: Melt together 1 package of semi-sweet chocolate pieces and 4 tablespoons Margarine (or butter) in the top of a double boiler. Add three tablespoons of warm water, and one teaspoon of vanilla. Stir 1 cup of confectioners sugar and a dash of salt into a large mixing bowl, and add 1 cup grated coconut. Stir chocolate mixture into dry ingredients, and mix well. Press fudge into a 9 inch pan and chill. Cut into squares to serve. Makes about 1 1/2 lbs.

Think of Efficiency When Buying A Can Opener

Small accessory equipment is too frequently purchased at the Dime Store. It looks and behaves well when new but does not stand up under continuous hard service. The can opener is no exception. Most can openers that require two hands for manipulation are inefficient. They take a lot of energy to use and they leave a jagged, hazardous edge on the can.

A good can opener should remove the cover from a round, square or oval can with minimum effort and should leave a smooth even edge. Openers that fasten to the wall or table edge usually do this. Cutting is done by turning a crank, which takes only a moderate amount of energy, uses only one hand, and cuts the cover cleanly from the top of the can.

Usually only the flat metal support is permanently fastened to the wall; the rest of the can opener may be removed and placed in a drawer. Some can openers are pivoted and will swing back and lie flat against the wall when not in use.

The cutting blade of the can opener should be sharpened regularly.

SERVE CANADA

A "strong" Canada, today, is essential if we are to preserve our freedom, our own way of life. Freedom demands constant guard and effort by all who enjoy it. A "strong Canada" is the responsibility of all Canadians.

SAFETY

I worry sometimes about money; I worry sometimes about my friends. But surely our guardian angel's watch over us never ends.

I have learned when in deep apprehension, suspended above dangers vast,
That just before falling, I'm rescued by Infinite care at the last.

So I know from repeated experience that safety is always in store;

No matter what hazards are threatening, I'll finally reach heaven's shore.

I am sure, though storms furious are raging, my boat will not ever capsize.

But will float smoothly up to the harbor of heaven's own fair, shining skies.

— Nancy Orpha Parks.

RED CROSS SUNDAY
MARCH 1st

Toronto, February 25—Harold H. Leather, Chairman of the National Executive Committee, Canadian Red Cross Society, announced today that March 1 has been designated as Red Cross Sunday, and Saturday, February 28 as Red Cross Sabbath.

Observance of these special days in churches and synagogues throughout Canada and the United States precedes the Canadian Red Cross national appeal for funds which opens on March 2.

Red Cross branches in many communities of the nation are planning additional functions to give these days special significance.

Small Soldier... But Tough

Koreans Pack Mighty Wallop on Meagre Diet

(CBC Correspondent)

How the diminutive Korean soldier packs the wallop he does on the meagre diet he is on would startle most occidental observers. Non-military men, like myself, had their eyes opened by the mess facilities throughout the 6th Division of Korea division.

However, looking at this "surprise" in its Korean and Asiatic context, you find it no surprise at all.

For example, it would seem incomprehensible to the North American palate to go for months without meat. Because this Korean soldier gets little meat, a hasty conclusion, then, would be that the ROK's are not well fed. This is simply not true.

To judge the Korean soldier by European or Canadian standards and not those existing within his country is wholly out of line with logic and leads to grave misunderstandings about the true nature of the Korean attitude.

Meat is not a staple for most Koreans. Fish, rice, vegetables and confections thereof are. So, therefore, it is perfectly natural that the Korean soldier's diet should be light on meat.

Observing the Korean combat soldier's daily ration, I notice it would fit neatly into two cigarette cartons. Rice, plus cabbage and greens. Bacon, plus in Japan and red peppers are the normal content of the ration. The huge kitchen I set at the enlisted man's mess at the division command post turned out food strictly for Korean tastes.

With an interpreter I set out to determine what the Korean soldier ate at this location fairly well behind the lines.

Before we were within 100 yards of the area, I could smell just about everything that was cooking. The Korean cook has a heavy hand with the garlic.

Four or five huge earthen vats, charcoal black from hundreds of usings, were being heated over wood fires set in a pit. The lids were danced around under the constant pressure of steam.

This, I was told, was the national dish—kimchee. By now I had become used to the overpowering aroma. I asked how kimchee was made.

First, a wicked quantity of garlic and onions are mixed with cabbage. After rice, red peppers and greens are added, the arrow is simmered until dinner time. The Koreans devour it like Americans downing hot dogs at a baseball game. I declined to taste it.

I asked my interpreter to show me the officers' mess and the general's mess. Generally, they differed only in the quantity of food being prepared.

HEALTH

Psychiatrist Probes Why We Have Plenty of Crime To Keep Our Courts Busy

"Crime is a major industry on the North American continent," declares Dr. Robert O. Jones, professor of psychiatry at Dalhousie University, in the new issue of Health. "We, in Canada, like to pride ourselves on the fact that our situation is better than in the United States, but we still have no trouble keeping our courts busy."

Dr. Jones, who submits, offers ample evidence that our methods of dealing with crime have been notoriously unsatisfactory. Our crime rate has gone steadily up, and a very large number of people go right on repeating crimes despite having been exposed to all the reforms of our system. So any thinking person has a right to ask whether we can not do something better, and perhaps cut down on crime through prevention.

"I don't think all crime is primarily psychiatric in significance," states Dr. Jones at the outset. "I have a feeling that a good deal of what might be called 'organized crime' is carried on by smart and clever people whose personalities are not distinctly different from those of successful business or professional men. They have reasoned that an activity outside the law will bring them more profits in an easier and quicker way. These men may be lacking in some sort of moral sense, but I don't believe they are mentally ill."

"I'd have some difficulty in drawing sharp lines between the moral sense of the bootlegger and that of his customers, between the race track bookmaker and the man who runs his gambling operation, or between the activities of the ring that furnishes protection and certain smart business practices. People like these are problems for society as a whole and not particularly for specialists in the more limited field of psychiatry."

Dr. Jones goes on to say, however, that there is a considerable proportion of crime which can best be looked upon as indicating some type of sick personality. This is a criminal acting in the way he does because of certain defects within himself, which, really and honestly, prevent him from doing much better.

A survey a few years ago of 10,000 prisoners in Sing-Sing Penitentiary reported that more than half were considered to be either mentally defective, or psychotic (insane), or they had some sort of emotional upset which rendered them not really responsible for what they did.

"I think if anyone looked at the record of crimes, as some before me court sitting, he'd agree that at least a third of them were not the acts of reasonable people, but of people acting in a very stupid way or acting in a way which suggested that they were emotionally upset."

The Health League of Canada magazine article then goes on to review various types of criminals, and concludes with an appeal for a new public attitude which will take into consideration the newer findings of psychiatry. It urges particularly that the legal profession, starting back in its law schools, should become more enlightened on this question and should come to regard psychiatry as something more than "a rather sharp trick to get your client off."

DEATH REVEALS ECCENTRICITIES—This photo shows John Laughlin and his son John, Jr., many years ago when he was amassing a fortune of an estimated million dollars in real estate and building ventures in Toronto. At the age of 97, John Laughlin died of accidental asphyxiation in an untidy house where a fortune in cash was kept stuffed in the cans, folded between newspapers and crammed into old shoes. The son, now 62, was overcome by the gas stove fumes which caused his father's death and was taken to hospital. Both lived lives of near poverty, doing their own cooking and washing.—Central Press Canadian.

World Happenings Briefly Told

A bronze plaque has been set in the floor of historic Westminster Hall to mark the place of the late King George's lying-in-state before the royal funeral in February, 1952.

Approximately 15 per cent. of all the money Canadians spent in 1951 was for running their governments—divided between the federal, provincial and federal—The Bureau of Statistics states.

Salmon will soon be travelling first-class up some Scottish rivers. Fishermen in the north are being carried by the fish over stretches of difficult water.

Israel is suffering from a partial drought which already has cost $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 worth of grain. A ministry of agriculture spokesman in Jerusalem estimated that 60,000 acres of winter crops have been lost.

A scheme to save money by collecting rents monthly instead of weekly backfired in Manchester, England. Arrears shot up more than $1,000 because collectors found tenants could not save the rent money that long.

The British Travel and Holiday Association estimates total tourist earnings in Britain last year were $322,000,000. This included about $44,000,000 spent by 180,000 visitors from Canada and the United States.

The U.N. made $337,130 from the sale of approximately 11,000,000 stamps from Oct. 24, 1951, to the end of 1952. The U.N. gets money only from the sale of stamps for philatelic purposes.

Australia expects a wheat crop of about 335 million bushels for 1952-53. Australian Wheat Board chairman, Sir John Teasdale, says this would be 28 million bushels below last year's crop.

Largest desert in the world is the Sahara, in Northern Africa. It covers an area of about 3,000,000 square miles.

LIFE IS NOT ALL TURKEY DINNERS

Life is not all turkey dinners or sirloin steaks; Nor strawberries with cream and gravy and cakes. Life is not all milk cooks and such, or evening dress; Nor the latest in hats and a price one could guess. No, life may be bread with a thin smear of jam. A meal of steamed beef or a knuckle of ham; It may be odd clothes from a second-hand store, Or a cheap silk gown with very little more. But no matter, by chance, what may be our dish, Though miles wide of the mark of our fondest wish; No matter, either, what may be our attire, Though not nearly as good as our heart's desire, We can make good use of the simplest fare, And the clothes we can don with a gracious air. While we strive to better ourselves each day; To make living a pleasure every mile of the way.

Sculptured 30 Realistic Dinosaurs

CALGARY.—John Kanerva graduated from the pastels and the backdrops in his native Finland and the United States to hand-painting early passenger cars in southern Alberta and eventually to sculpturing and painting model dinosaurs for the Calgary zoo.

Thanks to Kanerva, the zoo has an international reputation for these life-like models of prehistoric animals. Calgary has the only zoological park in America with 30 life-size models of the big lizards.

All are made of cement and the biggest, the brontosaurus, is 107 feet long and 40 feet high at the head. Six men helped Kanerva make it, the job taking three months.

All this started about 20 years ago when Kanerva took his wife to see the movie "Lost World". Kanerva was fascinated.

Kanerva studied books on the prehistoric ages and it became a five-year hobby. Then the Calgary Zoological Society, for whom Kanerva had done some wood carving, asked him what he'd like to make next. He said dinosaurs.

All of the dinosaurs at the zoo on St. George's Island are made to scale. The legs of the towering cement models are solid. The tumbling heads are hollow. The framework is of quarter-inch steel rods and the cement is placed on model laths.

The biggest model weighs 120 tons. In natural life such a reptile would weigh 65 tons.

Kanerva now is working on a new prehistoric scene to be unveiled. This is a 60- by 100-foot cement front from one of the zoo's fossil houses. It will have raised, life-size figures of human and animal.

The sculptor-painter likes to recall his car-painting days around 1917 when cars were something of a novelty and those that kept their paint for more than three years were unusual.

In those days, black or green paint seemed to be the only colors the manufacturers used. When it started peeling, people would take their cars to Kanerva for repainting in brighter colors. He took him 20 hours to paint a car by hand. He charged $25 a car. Stripes then were popular, and Kanerva recalls it was some trick to put them on.

SETS EXAMPLE—As minister of health, Hon. Paul Martin feels he has to set a good example, even at the dinner table. So, though he admits to an appetite as good as anyone in the Dominion, and though he can, as shown here, perform enthusiastically on a steak and all the trimmings, he applied the brakes to his expanding waist line by curbing his inclination to eat. The effort, he maintains, has paid off. In 20 months, he says, he took off 40 pounds, which brings him down to 160. The effort, he maintains, is another example of "good government."—Central Press Canadian.

FISHES DIET—NEW ANGLE FOR ANGLERS

OTTAWA.—Anglers will soon be matching wits with larger and stronger trout in Alberta's mountain streams and lakes, the resources and development department states.

The department said fishery experts have adopted the "spoon-feeding" principle to raise larger and healthier trout in the province.

Eastern brook trout fingerlings at the Jasper Park and Banff Park Hatcheries are being fed a special formula containing the wonder drug aureomycin. The compound contains aureomycin and vitamin B-12.

At the Jasper Park hatchery, 3,000 fingerling eastern brook trout were fed aureomycin in small quantities during a 15-day period. Another 3,000 fingerlings were fed their usual diet.

W. C. Cable, superintendent of the hatchery, said at the end of the period the 3,000 trout fed the drug were one quarter of an inch longer than trout fed the normal way. They also consumed less food to produce the same weight of fish.

Losses among the trout fed the drug diet were three times higher than among the aureomycin-fed fish. The time required to bring the fish to a size large enough to be planted in lakes and streams also was reduced.

The department said the experiments indicate that "continued feeding of the antibiotic to the fish will produce more fish with less food consumption, and as a result less cost for hatchery operation. When planted, these trout will be healthier and larger than usual, and will provide more vigorous fish for angling."

Canadian Bank System One Of World's Finest

OTTAWA.—The Canadian banking system must be regarded as one of the finest and strongest in the world today.

So declared Clayton T. Elderkin, Inspector General of the Banks, Department of Finance, in addressing the Chartered Accountants' Club of Ottawa. Charles Gale presided.

The speaker, in sketching the background of Canadian banks, recalled that the first bank was incorporated in 1822. Between that time and Confederation, some 80 banks were created in British North America, of which 35 were in existence at July 1, 1867. Five of those are in operation today.

Of the 100 banks incorporated since Confederation, 38 never commenced, 27 failed and 35 were absorbed by other banks.

Total loss to creditors through bank liquidations since Confederation has been about $15,000,000, of which "half resulted from the failure of the Home Bank of Canada."

Mr. Elderkin noted that the last bank merger in Canada was in 1931. Today, Canada's 10 banks operate over 3,850 branches of which 110 are in foreign countries. The banks carry over $10 billion in assets.

The government in 1932 received from the banks over 5,000 reports covering risks of more than $2,300 million.

He referred to the rigid control the Government of Canada today maintains over the banks, through official inspection.

"I assure you" he concluded, "that this examination and control procedure has been one of the constructive features in the development of our banking system which, without doubt, is regarded as one of the finest and strongest in the world today."

Our North-South pair made the most of a standard situation in last month's match against New York. East and West played a double spade over West's One Heart opening and the British South passed for the time being.

West bid One No-Trump (Two Hearts in a Room 2 on this type of hand), passed round, doubled North's penalty pass round, and the deal was over.

The delayed double suggested values in clubs.

Our East player's response to One Heart in a Room 2 was One No-Trump, and South made an immediate double. If North passed, it would be South's lead and he heard that the penalty might not compensate for a possible vulnerable game.

Trumps was converted to four spades, one down.

PROVINCE WIDE FLOOD RELIEF APPEAL

Hon. E. C. Manning, Premier of Alberta, today called upon all Alberta citizens to contribute to the European Flood Relief Fund.

Mr. Manning, in announcing the Alberta Government's support of the fund, said that money is needed urgently to relieve the distress of thousands of people made homeless by the storms and floods which struck England, The Netherlands and other European countries early in February.

Premier Manning requested the mayors and Reeves of all Alberta municipalities to announce the existence of the Flood Relief Fund, and urge the public's support. He emphasized that the appeal for funds is not a Red Cross appeal but the Canadian Red Cross will be the administrative arm of the committee for the distribution of assistance through its International Red Cross channels.

At present, the Canadian National Railways has a total of 38,316 freight and passenger cars, of 25 different types, in service on its western region, which extends from the Lakehead to the Pacific Coast.
